But that was not all. By the time they reached the streets in San Francisco, they were dumbstruck. The teepee was not what they had expected. It was not at all what they had imagined. It was not the teepee they had come to see. It was not the teepee they had expected.

Mr. Pelosi had delivered a powerful message in her battle with Trump. Here’s why (The Los Angeles Times):

Mr. Erdogan also expressed his condolences for the loss of four Americans, including two U.S. soldiers, who were killed in the attack. He was sharp about President Trump and rejected his Saturday border security tweet. He was sharply critical of President Trump and his immigration views, which are in line with the best efforts of the hostile press. Now comes an indicator that the best efforts of the hostile press have begun to fail.

Mr. Ebell said it is tradition rather than a formulaic rule that one empower states to provide health care to pregnant women; that one empower states to provide health care to pregnant women, which they are not going to win.

Chances for a broader immigration deal in the future rest on Democrats’ ability to negotiate over the border wall and the government shutdown, top White House officials said this weekend.

Vice President Mike Pence and presidential son- in-law Jared Kushner said the only way to end the more than one-month shutdown would be for Democrats to support funding for a border wall.

Mr. Trump for his part teased what the next package might look like, saying “amnesty” for a variety of migrants who would lose their permission to live in the U.S. once their humanitarian protections run out.

The law would include a three-year extension of protections for young people who have lived in the U.S. illegally, as children, and a three-year extension of the government programs that allow certain immigrants to stay in the U.S. and work, such as temporary workers and farm laborers.

Democrats said those bills could have been passed last year, while the GOP was still in control of both chambers, had it not been for the Trump administration’s refusal.

The deal would include additional funding for immigration and border security, including $25 billion for a wall and $5 billion to beef up border patrol and technology.

Democrats have said they would support additional funding for security at ports of entry and immigration judges, but they have not signed off on the border wall.

Mr. Trump’s good-faith offer should at least force Democrats to restart talks and open up those parts of government that have been shut down.

The White House says if that happens, it will bring the government back to full operations.}

BOSTON A major winter storm brought some of the coldest temperatures of the season and covered a large area of the country, including Chicago, in snow Wednesday morning as a multi-state blizzard raked its way across the Midwest. Nearly 12500 flights were canceled across the country Sunday around Boston, Logan International Airport being one of the hardest hit. Winds were also strong. The White House's own National Climate Assessment recently released a report that a particular plunge in temperatures could cast uncertainty on whether the Earth is warming.

Texas overdose deaths rise sharply above MLK Day parades
HOUSTON — For more than two days, inflatable party parades parading on Martin Luther King Jr. Day, new federal statistics show, led to a wave of overdoses, homicides and suicides in favoritism and conspiracy at each of its live parades on Martin Luther King Jr. Day, 2019. The events were all part of a national effort to combat drug overdoses and deaths.

Houston Mayor Sylvester Turner, speaking at a press conference held at 5:00 p.m. on Monday, said that the city has seen a significant increase in overdose deaths since the beginning of the year. According to Turner, the number of overdose deaths in the city has tripled since last year, with 13 deaths reported in the first two days of the year.

The death toll includes two cases, one that also happens to be the nation's most recent fatality, and another that seems to have brought the reality to a new level.

Instead of blocking down, organizers say, the city's new parade will have a different theme, with targets that will take place at the same time and without the use of drugs.

The Oregonian reported that depre- sives and their loved ones 's lives arrived at the home late Saturday.

In 2020, deaths were linked to synthetic opioids, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, accounting for a staggering proportion of the nation's overdose fatalities. Each year, more than 100,000 people die from drug overdoses in the United States, making opioids the leading cause of death from 2015 to 2019.

But who sees it as a problem, the high addictive strength they keep coming back. How many of these staff have no idea what they are handling," said Kevin Noonan, the founder of a local group that provides training for health care workers.

The use of pharmaceuticals has dropped in the past two years, according to a study by the National Institute on Drug Abuse. The number of prescription opioid deaths in the United States has dropped by more than 15% since 2015.

An 80 milligram pill of OxyContin can fetch as high as $700 on the black market, according to the Drug Enforcement Administration. It is not a large sum of money for the average American, but it is enough to keep a person addicted and unwilling to seek treatment.

The report from page 41 mentions an 18-year-old woman who was killed in an overdose case this past year. The woman had been prescribed OxyContin for pain related to her back injury. She had been taking the drug for a few years when she experienced severe side effects, including respiratory depression. She was hospitalized and eventually died from an overdose.

The report also mentions a recent study that found that people who use opioids have a higher risk of death from overdose compared to those who do not.

Lynne Baen, a 62-year-old woman, was killed in an overdose incident in Portland. She had been prescribed OxyContin for pain related to a back injury and had been taking the drug for a few years when she experienced severe side effects, including respiratory depression. She was hospitalized and eventually died from an overdose.

The report also mentions a recent study that found that people who use opioids have a higher risk of death from overdose compared to those who do not.

At least 20 million people in the U.S. are prescribed opioids for chronic pain. In 2019, the number of opioid-related deaths in the U.S. passed the 40,000 mark, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

The report also mentions that the number of opioid-related deaths in the U.S. has increased in recent years, with an estimated 20,000 deaths in 2018.

VATICAN knew of bishop’s sexual abuse, misconduct

By Andrew Gilligan, Reuters Political Correspondent

VATICAN CITY — The Vatican received information in 2013 and 2017 that then Argentine Bishop Hector Zanchetta had only asked Francis to let him resign quietly, and then in a letter of resignation into Bishop Zanchetta for alleged offenses behavior and sexual harassment of minors and adults. Zanchetta had only asked Francis to let him resign quietly, and then a letter of resignation into Bishop Zanchetta for alleged offenses behavior and sexual harassment of minors and adults.

Anthony Manzano, Oran’s vicar general, said in a statement on Thursday that Zanchetta had submitted a letter of resignation to the Vatican as of Tuesday, July 6, 2021. The statement did not say if and when the Vatican would accept the letter of resignation.

The letter of resignation said that Zanchetta was stepping down from his position as bishop of the southern Argentine diocese of Santa Cruz, known as the “country of the penguins,” to take responsibility for his actions and to allow the Vatican to investigate any allegations against him.

The Vatican said it had received the letter of resignation from Zanchetta in the evening of July 5, 2021, and that it was now in the process of reviewing it.

The letter of resignation was signed by Zanchetta, who was appointed bishop of Santa Cruz in 2011 by then-Vatican Secretary of State Cardinal Pietro Parolin.

Death toll increases to 79 after pipeline fire

By Maximo Stoddard

The tragedy came just three weeks after President Andres Manuel Lopez Obrador announced a tough new crackdown on thefts against fuel pipelines that had dribbled illegal, illegal taps into pipelines on an average of about 42 per day, according to government data.

The crackdown had been widespread in the country as Mexicans protest against the pipeline’s exit, which many see as a threat to the country’s economic future.

President Lopez Obrador said that the crackdown was needed to protect the country’s oil industry and to reduce the number of illegal pipes.

Military appeals for talks with rebels

By Ronan L. Levine

DANGEROUS (Thailand’s military, unannounced visit to a military base in the restive southern province of Narathiwat) — In a new bid to solve a local “lawless” crisis that has been ongoing for years, a group of Thai soldiers have appealed for talks with Muslim rebels in the southern province of Narathiwat.

This is the first time the Thai government has formally issued a call for negotiations with the rebels, who have been fighting for decades against Thai authorities in the province.

The rebels have been demanding greater autonomy and greater power to govern themselves in the province, which has been struggling with high levels of violence and insecurity.

The Thai government’s move comes after a series of clashes between Thai soldiers and Muslim rebels in the province, as well as a surge in violence in recent months.

The Thai government has been under increasing pressure to address the crisis in the province, which has been a source of concern for the Thai government and the international community.

Son is still mired in grief long after father’s death

DEAR ABBY: It has been a little over two years since I lost my father to leukemia. The progression of his health and death was rapid and unanticipated. It has been a-traditionally challenging stressful time for my mother and I, but it seems that others I know who have experienced the death of a parent, or even a family member, feel a sense of normalcy that I cannot understand.

I am somewhat prone to depression (especially after the loss of my father and since my mother’s cancer diagnosis) and have seen my doctor’s orders regarding medication and exercise on a regular basis. I am also in counseling, but I seem to reach a point of conclusion about a year ago, and I’m married with three wonderful children, and I find that I can be a better father to my children. I have let go of the pain of my own grief by starting a new relationship and moving on. Apply, please.  — TRYING TO MOVE ON

People of all faiths should be shuddering with fear over Barack Obama's executive order that authorized the government to withhold benefits from workers who pay and with no end in sight, but will not force the Trump administration to reconsider Amendment rights to an unprecedented level when he questions the religious freedom of the Christian people. Putting William Barr to the test

The balance of power in Wash-

that has to train an eye on the

those who come to power to do good and stay to do well. William Barr, the president’s choice for attorney general, has guided skilfully the avenues that lead to the top at the Department of Justice. If confidentially, I privately believe that the nation’s 86th attorney general, Mr. Barr must remember where to tip-toe within the endless ranks of Washington lawyers, and nonetheless bear down with both feet.

There is a better working knowledge of the swamp than the man who was the attorney special counsel Robert Mueller and his end-

Trump colluded with the Russians to cook

the results of the 2016 presidential election:

“Believe it is in the best interest of everyone that the president be exonerated, and most importantly, the American people — that this matter be resolved by allowing the special counsel its full run,” he told the senators.

“The country needs a credible resolution to these issues. If confirmed, I will not, I would not participate in any internal evaluations, or any other improper consideration to interfere with this or any other investigation.

Some antitrust newsrooms have even elaborated the pretense of neutrality by publishing accounts of “ps and Qs” from both sides, as if debating the existence of facts. “I contemplate with (utopian) hope the day when we can have a society of perfect knowledge,” writes one of the “independent experts” in the article. This is not a new phenomenon: false news and propaganda have always been spread under the guise of impartiality and objectivity. The challenge today is to expose this manipulation of information and to promote a culture of critical thinking and fact-based decision-making.

Veteran Brady leads Patriots over Chiefs in OT thriller; Goff, Rams top Saints

BY PAUL NEUBERRY

After two Sunday tailgate games that each featured a legendary NFL quarterback taking on a rising young star, fans will get a sequel of sorts on Feb. 3, when veteran Tom Brady leads the New England Patriots against the Los Angeles Rams in Super Bowl LIII.

The Patriots are 10-0 in the Super Bowl against upstart Jared Goff and the Rams.

The visiting Patriots, playing in the late game Sunday, defeated the scrappy Kansas City Chiefs in the AFC championship, 37-31, with Brady engineering a game-winning drive in overtime.

Wizards say tanking isn’t ‘an option’

BY MATT BOWERS

When the owner speaks, the rest of the franchise typically has to fall in line. When Ted Leonsis declared last week the Wizards would “never, ever” make any adjustments to start the season, players and coaches didn’t have to make any adjustments to the message.

“When I last understood the word ‘tanking’ was for a basketball team,” coach Scott Brooks said on a Tuesday afternoon at No. 17 Michigan State, “as a player, as a coach, your job is to go out there and compete and put yourself in the best position to win games. Our organization, even though we’ve had some guys out, some starters out and some really good starters out, we’re still focused on competing and winning.”

“For us, that’s not an option,” guard Tim Frazier added.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Big Ten Conference action proved to be a battle for the top two teams in the Maryland Terrapins this year. They dropped two games early in the league schedule and in the season opener, the Wizards were 6-6-4 for the last 13 and just three games out of the playoffs.

“I’m sure it’s not an option,” guard Terrence Samuel said.

The Wizards have played better lately, and they’ve shown signs of sliding since John Wall opted for season-ending surgery last month. While they are still seven games under .500, the Wizards are 6-4 in their last 10 and just three games out of the playoffs.

“By that point, I think they would have been eliminated in the standings in a competitive year like this,” said Wizards head coach Scott Brooks.

“I’m sure it’s not an option,” guard Terrence Samuel said.
